THE HAMBURGER	TELEVISION	THE BALL-POINT PEN
An American chef from Connecticut, Louis Lassen, made and sold the first hamburgers in 1895. He called them hamburgers because sailors from Hamburg in Germany gave him the recipe. Students from Yale University and businessmen loved them and bought them. Kenneth Lassen, Louis' grandson, still sells hamburgers in Connecticut.	A Scotsman, John Logie Baird, transmitted the first television picture on 25 th October 1925. The first thing on television was a boy from the office next to Baird's workroom in London. In 1927, Baird sent pictures from London to Glasgow. In 1928, he sent pictures to New York and also produced the first colour TV pictures.	A Hungarian, Laszlo Biro, made the first ball-point pen in 1938. In 1944, the British army bought thirty thousand because soldiers could write with them outside in the rain. At the end of the war, "Biros" quickly became very popular all over the world. In 1948, a shop in New York sold ten thousand in one day.

Please Bring Your Parents

LONDON Wed July 31 (Reuters) - British pensioner Joseph Dickinson, 103, had a shock when his local hospital phoned him to ask him to come in for an eye test, and told him to bring his parents.

"I must be getting younger, in fact much younger," he told his local paper, the Hartlepool Mail.

Joseph Dickinson was born in 1899, but because the hospital computer only read the last two numbers it mistook his age as just three years old.

"It was a mistake," a spokesman for City Hospitals Sunderland told Reuters by telephone from northern England on Tuesday.

"I think he was quite amused when he explained to the person at the hospital why he couldn't bring his mother and father with him."
